Sullivan was knocked out a fortnight ago by Amby McGarry. Few persons believed that Sullivan would lose this fight for they knew that he would be in shape to do his best, and the "Kid's" best is usually very good. Few, however, reckoned McGarry as a rough slugger, perhaps with little science, but a most use ful person with strong arms. After this defeat, the first knockout Sullivan ever got, he gave up training and sought the rest that was coming to a defeated gladiator. He took on weight and was unprepared to enter the ring, especially against such a rugged person as "Unk' Russell, without a minute's preparation Even at his best Sullivan would have the battle of his life with Russell.

For some reason McGarry petered out of his match with Russell. Reasons given by prize fighters are always taken with a grain of salt, but McGarry said he hurt his hand in a fight Tuesday night and was unfit to go on. Rather odd that Mc-Garry should get into a stiff battle Tuesday night, after making a match to be Thursday-Georgetown vs. Eureka, on Fat Men's pulled off at Baltimore three days later. But whatever the cause, McGarry would not go on with Russell. The Herfords sent word to Sullivan on Friday morning to come to Baltimore.
